COMMENCEMENT TIME NEAR FOR 315 SENIORS IN 8 HIGH SCHOOLS

High school principals announced today dates and general arrangements for commencement programs and other activities which will mark the graduation of about 315 boys and girls from the eight four-year high schools of Adams county.

Gettysburg

Professor G. W. Lefever said one of the largest classes in the history of Gettysburg high school will be handed diplomas at exercises in the high school auditorium the evening of June 1. A pageant again will feature the program built upon the general theme of "Building a Home Beautiful."

The principal also made first announcement of the arrangements for the annual baccalaureate services to be conducted Sunday evening, May 28, in St. James Lutheran church. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. N. B. S. Thomas, pastor of the Memorial United Brethren church here.

Biglerville

At Biglerville high school for the first time in the history of the school commencement exercises will be held on evenings of May 25 and 26 in order to accommodate the crowds the events attract annually. Forty-five seniors will participate in the commencement pageant on those two evenings.

The graduating class, which is the largest in several years, will attend baccalaureate services on Sunday, May 21, in St. Paul's Lutheran church at Biglerville when the Rev. P. J. Horick, Idaville, will deliver the sermon.

Arendtsville

May 24 will be commencement day for 19 seniors at the Arendtsville vocational high school. The name of the commencement speaker has not been announced for the exercises to be held in the school auditorium.

Gordonier, Harrisburg, a former president of the Millersville State Teachers' college. The class night program will be held May 29 in the Odd Fellows' hall in Fairfield.

On Sunday evening, May 28, the Rev. Emmert Colestock, Fairfield Lutheran pastor, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon in the Lutheran church.

Littlestown

Details of plans for the Littlestown high school commencement are not complete, school authorities said today, but announced that the graduation exercises will take place May 26 in the school auditorium. It was indicated that a pageant may be substituted for the customary graduation address by a guest speaker.

The baccalaureate service will be held Sunday, May 21, with the Rev. John Frehn, of the Methodist Episcopal church of Littlestown, delivering the sermon. Other pastors of the town will participate in the service.

Blossoms to Lure Many Visitors to County on Week-End

With apple orchards in the southern section of the fruit belt of Adams county approaching the peak of the bloom, week-end motorists will find thousands of acres of fruitland in this county in blossom.

Although peach orchards are losing their pink petals rapidly, cherry orchards are white and earlier varities of apples are coming into blossom.

Red bud and dogwood on the Gettysburg battlefield and elsewhere in the county are expected to be at their best this week-end.

High temperatures this week have pushed all blossoms to an unusually early blossomtime.

Soviet Airman Crosses Iceland

Hitler Scraps English Naval Pact and Polish Peace Treaty; Makes Non-Aggression Offer

Berlin, April 28 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, replying before the reichstag to President Roosevelt today, summarily ended the Anglo-German naval pact and ten-year peace agreement with Poland, but offered to give purely reciprocal assurances to those countries which come to him and ask for them.

He gave direct assurances to President Roosevelt for the territories of the American continent.

He laid the blame on "British warmongers" and on Poland's calling up of troops for his cancellation of the two agreements.

Lists Polish Policy

He contended Poland had rejected a just offer for the solution of the problem of Danzig and the Corridor.

In announcing his decision that the 10-year non-aggression agreement of 1934 with Poland had been infringed, Hitler ominously referred to the fate of Czechoslovakia by saying:

"The worst is that now Poland, like Czechoslovakia a year ago, believes under the pressure of a lying international campaign that it must call up troops although Germany on her part has not called up a single man and has not thought of proceeding in any way against Poland."

He asserted that his offers to Poland had been rejected.

These offers, he publicly revealed for the first time were:

Return of Danzig as a free state into the framework of the German reich; a sovereign German route across the Polish Corridor to East Prussia and a railway line across the Corridor at Germany's disposal; a free harbor at Danzig for Poland; acceptance of present boundaries be-

Reactions to Hitler's Reply

POLAND CALLS ACTION "BLUFF"

Warsaw, April 28 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's denunciation of the 10-year 1934 non-aggression pact with Poland was characterized as "bluff" in authoritative Polish circles today.

"He is just trying to scare Poland," said one well informed observer. "He won't get away with it."

It was stressed that Poland is willing to negotiate with Germany on the issue of the free state of Danzig, which Germany wants to absorb, but that Hitler's original demands on this subject were "impossible."

Some foreign diplomats saw the possibility that Poland might move closer to Soviet Russia because of the German action.

ASKS GERMANS TO STUDY BRITISH POLICY

London, April 28 (AP)—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, today warned the German people "to ask themselves what is the explanation" of Britain's new foreign policy.

Speaking shortly after Chancellor Hitler's momentous reichstag speech, Sir John said:

"The Geman people would do well to ask themselves what is the explanation of so surprising a change. Mr. Chamberlain (Britain's

Total attendance at the public school art displays being held in the three grade school buildings this week approached 1,500 Thursday evening when 825 patrons and other residents of the community visited classrooms at the Meade school building to examine work of pupils in grades one to six.

This evening the series of displays which have been directed by Miss Anna E. Mumper, supervisor of art in the public schools of Gettysburg, will close with the showing of work of sixth, seventh and eighth grades and high school art classes. The displays have been confined to the first floor of the building.

A wide range of exhibits will be included in the work of the more advanced art classes from the high school. Vacation houses designed by freshmen, block printing and monogrammed book jackets by pupils of the same class will fill one end of the Lincoln gymnasium which has been devoted to the high school display.

Drawings will trace period architecture in homes of the United States over a period of several hun-

LANDLORD AND TENANT ARGUE

A landlord-tenant squabble in Franklin township, near Newman's park, on Monday, has brought repercussions in offices of two local justices of the peace in the form of criminal charges.

Morris Rehrig, Chambersburg, the landlord, was arrested Thursday afternoon by Constable Horace L. Bender on a disorderly conduct charge brought by Emory H. Nixon, Fayetteville R. D., tenant in a Rehrig cottage along the Lincoln highway. The warrant was issued by Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore.

On the same afternoon Nixon was arrested by Constable Glenn Guise on a charge of forcible detainer lodged before Justice John C. Shealer by Rehrig. He was released for a hearing before Justice Shealer Saturday evening at 7 o'clock.

Rehrig's hearing on the disorderly count was set for Thursday evening but Nixon failed to put in his appearance as prosecutor and the charge was dropped.

Nixon claims Rehrig came to his mountain cottage and caused a disturbance Monday, while Rehrig states he simply called to ask Nixon to vacate and allow him to regain possession of his furnished cottage.

HANSON TELLS COLLEGE'S GOAL

"An education that doesn't teach you to meet every emergency of life is not complete," Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, told more than 75 members of the Harrisburg Alumni club of the college at a banquet Thursday night at the Harrisburger hotel, Harrisburg.

Doctor Hanson, one of several speakers at the dinner, made the assertion while explaining these two aims of a college education: To prepare boys and girls to meet life in the right manner when they become men and women, and not to rely too much on government aid.

He said that the pioneers of the country never gave much thought to security as they turned the wilderness into a better place to live.

"Students leaving college and young persons starting out in life have come to depend too much on security instead of working to make the world a more civilized place to live in and better conditions."

He said the term "security" has grown too much in favor and it is becoming harmful to the United States. Progress will be halted if "security" based on federal aid is the main issue of the country. He pointed out that an oyster, a creature of the mud, is secure in its mode of living and then asked if

HARTMAN CASE IS SETTLED; WHITED SUIT OPENS MONDAY

Trial of civil cases in common pleas court here ended abruptly for this week Thursday afternoon when a settlement was reached in an ejectment action involving Cashtown residents without the case going to the jury for decision.

The jury was drawn for the case and had been sworn when long side-bar and consultation room conferences began which resulted in a settlement of the case about 3 o'clock without a single witness having been called to testify.

Although details of the settlement were not made known it was stated that the plaintiffs, Mayme B., Martha L. and Lee M. Hartman and Mary B. Hain, agreed to discontinue the case and to give Minerva Hartman, the defendant in the case, a deed to the property involved after she pays an agreed sum and pays the costs of the case. The sum involved was reported unofficially to be between $500 and $600.

Case Involved 109 Acres

Martha L. and Lee M. Hartman and Mary B. Hain are children of Mayme B. Hartman. Minerva Hartman is a sister-in-law of Mayme B. Hartman.

Judge Fred S. Reese, Carlisle, of the Cumberland county courts, came here to preside over the trial in place of President Judge W. C. Sheely, who formerly had served as counsel for one of the parties involved in the suit.

After the Hartman case had been disposed of a jury was selected to try on Monday the only remaining action on the civil calendar and all the other petit jurors empanelled for this session were discharged finally.

Re-trial of the assumpsit action in which E. G. Whited, Straban township, against the Freystown Mutual Fire Insurance company York county, will begin Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The case had been tried last November when a jury was asked to bring in an unusual verdict in the form of answers to questions put by the court. Subsequent court action brought permission for a new trial.

Suit Based on Fire

The case resulted from a fire which destroyed a roadhouse along the Lincoln highway east of here which was insured by the defendant company and on which Whited held a lien. The following jurors will hear the case:

Donald Boyer, Biglerville R. D.; Mary M. Bushman, Gettysburg R. 3; George Carbaugh, Cashtown; Ezra V. Hauser, New Oxford R. 2; Calvin Hoffman, Aspers; Mervin Kepner, Gettysburg R. 3; Harry Little, Gettysburg; Albert Mehring, Hanover R. 2; W. E. Roth, Gettysburg; Roy Weaner, Gettysburg R. 4; Elmer Wilt, Hanover, R. 4, and Albert S. Wolfe, Littlestown R. 1.

The regular session of sentence court will be held Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock with a long list of defendants slated to appear for sentence.

Absence of any desertion and non-support cases for hearing eliminated the necessity for a court session today.

HITLER SCRAPS ENGLISH AND POLISH PACTS

tween the two countries as final; a 25-year non-aggression treaty, and a guarantee of the independence of Slovakia by Germany, Poland and Hungary.

Offers Non-Aggression Promises

To France Hitler repeated his guarantee to respect Alsace-Lorraine as French territory.

Answering President Roosevelt's non-aggression proposals he declared himself willing to give to other nations assurances of non-aggression on the condition of absolute reciprocity, and provided the states in question desired it.

"The German government is prepared to give to each of the states named (by Roosevelt) an assurance of the kind desired by Mr. Roosevelt on the condition of absolute reciprocity provided that the state wishes it and itself addresses to Germany a request for such an assurance together with appropriate proposals," the German fuehrer declared.

"As for the duration of these agreements Germany is willing to make terms with each individual state in accordance with the wishes of that state."

Hitler drove through cold, rain-swept streets to the reichstag session to answer the message of President Roosevelt of April 15 proposing non-aggression pledges by Germany and Italy to 31 nations.

Denies Violating Rights

He arrived at Kroll opera house, the meeting place, at noon and began speaking nine minutes later (6:09 a. m., E.S.T.)

Despite the rain, he drove to the opera house in an open car.

Hitler first called upon the reichstag to ratify or reject his answer to the United States President and then launched into a recital of his aims in Europe.

The first applause came when he said, "I merely restored to the German people what others had broken by force.

"I have not taken any step that violated foreign rights but have merely restored the rights violated 20 years ago."

Assurances for Americans

"Providence has let me find the ways for liberating our people from the deepest misery without bloodshed and for leading them upward again," he declared.

The fuehrer gave specific assurances regarding the American continent.

"I should not like to let this opportunity pass without giving above all to the President of the United States an assurance regarding those territories which would after all give him the most cause for apprehension, namely the United States itself and the other states of the American continent.

"And I here solemnly declare that all the assertions which have been circulated in any way concerning an impending German attack or invasion on or in American territory are rank frauds and gross untruths, quite apart from the fact that such assertions, as far as the military possibilities are concerned could have their origin only in a stupid imagination."

Attacks English Policy

Hitler declared that the basis for the naval treaty with Great Britain, limiting the reich's navy to 35 per cent of the British, had been removed and that he had notified the British government to that effect.

"Since England today, both by the press and officially, upholds the view that Germany should be opposed under all circumstances and confirms this by the policy of encirclement known to us, the basis for the naval treaty has been removed."

"I have therefore resolved to send today a communication to this effect to the British government.

Suggests Conference

"This is not a matter of practical material importance to us — for I still hope that we shall be able to avoid an armaments race with England — but an action of self respect.

"Should the British government, however, wish to enter once more into negotiations with Germany on this problem no one would be happier than I at the prospect of still being able to come to a clear and straight-forward understanding."

Regarding Poland, Hitler reiterated his views that "necessity of a free access to the sea for the Polish state cannot be ignored."

The Polish-German pact, he held, had been infringed by Poland and thereby becomes void.

The Polish German non-aggression agreement, for ten years, was concluded in January 1934.

To France he repeated his guarantee to respect Alsace-Lorraine as French territory.

"I have not as France did in 1870-71, described the cession of Alsace-Lorraine as intolerable for the future but have drawn a difference between the Saar territory and the two former imperial (German) provinces," the fuehrer declared.

British Envoy Absent

"I have never changed my attitude nor will I ever do so."

Neither British Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson nor French Ambassador Robert Coulondre — both of whom returned to Berlin only this week after absences of more than a month following German absorption of Czecho-slovak territory — were present at the momentous session. Sir George Ogilvie-Forbes, charge d'affaires of the British embassy, represented Britain but no Frenchman or Poles were noted in the diplomatic circle.

Acting Charge D'Affaires Raymond Geist and Donald Heath represented the United States.

Hitler spoke two hours and 17 minutes.

ITALIAN EDITOR PRAISES SPEECH

Rome, April 28 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, editor who often speaks Premier Mussolini's mind, today praised Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech as "a warning against the foreign policy" which counsels "offensive action for the protection of imperial interests and egoisms." Gayda's comment in Il Giornale D'Italia appeared on the streets a minute after the German chancellor's speech ended.

STOCKS SWING UPWARD, BUT THEN TUMBLE

New York, Aprril 28 (AP).—Stocks put on an orderly advance in today's market, following the more conciliatory than expected Hitler speech, but the upswing was short-lived and, near mid-day, prices turned moderately uneven. Securities in foreign markets pushed higher before the New York opening. Later they slipped from the best.

FRENCH SEE HITLER STRIKING AT POLAND

Paris, April 28 (AP) — First French reaction to the Hitler speech in circles close to the foreign office was, in the words of one, that it "closely resembles an anti-climax."

Diplomatic sources, however, said they considered that Hitler might have been preparing the way for a sudden stroke against Poland.

Sources close to the government said, however, that a real lack of French concern was shown by the fact that Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet both passed up Hitler's address to attend a state luncheon given by Rumanian Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu.

SENATOR BORAH SEES PEACE TALKS DOOMED

Washington, April 28 (AP) — Senator Borah (R-Idaho), dean of the senate's foreign relations committee, said today "it seems to me" that Hitler regarded his speech in the reichstag "as ending the matter of further world peace discussions."

At the State department, Secretary Hull studied press dispatches on the speech but, since the department had announced previously it would not regard it as a formal reply to President Roosevelt's written peace proposals, there was no comment.

Some legislators expressed frank disappointment at the tone of Hitler's answer to the plea for ten years of peace in Europe. Others called the speech "blustering" and "bluffing."

"It appears to me," said Senator Connally (D-Tex), a member of the senate foreign relations committee, "that the President's intervention has borne some fruit. Hitler's answer has given some encouragement to those who hope for peaceful settlement of Europe's difficulties."

dreds of years. Floor plans of recreation rooms and buildings are shown in the same area. Fresco pictures together with table displays of the materials and tools used in the art classes will form an interesting division of the show. Tooled wall plaques which appear to be leather but have been made from cellophane by the practice of "cellocraft" will attract attention.

Much eighth grade work will be shown in the first floor hall and a southeast classroom where lettering, poster work, linoleum block work, illustrations related to industry with much attention given to color and design. The eighth graders have done work on Indian subjects related to the theme of their graduation operetta.

Color harmony and design and silhouettes related to science and nature studies are outstanding in the seventh grade displays. There are science notebook covers, book and art week posters and sports illustrations.

Two rooms of sixth grade work have as their principal theme industrial growth and include wall drawings on textiles, ships, trade, resources, transportation and communication and agriculture. There are transportation models and displays of skillful work in cloth matching with water colors on paper. Cut out work and samples of other art projects carried on during the year are included in the exhibits.

Committees of pupils from the sixth, seventh and eighth grades and the high school will be on hand to greet visitors this evening and explain the displays.

Church Finds Free Food Is Good Bait For Auction Sales

Clayton, N. C. (AP)—Whenever the Mount Moriah Baptist church needs money to make church repairs, buy equipment or pay the preacher, it does not have to take up a collection or sell bonds. It just holds a harvest auction to which everyone within 25 miles around is invited.

The church has 260 members, all farmers. They bring their contributions in kind, deposit them in front of the white clapboard church and go inside to hear the pastor preach.

Then they go out into the church yard for a gigantic picnic style dinner. A long, rough-hewn table is loaded with barbecued meat, sandwiches, chicken, pies, cakes, preserves, salads, deviled eggs, corn pone and coffee—all provided by the women folks.

After everyone has done justice to the dinner, the auction sale begine. Saleable goods which members have donated include pigs, chickens, hay, fodder, kindling wood, potatoes, apples, walnuts, home-canned vegetables, preserves, pickles, cakes, pies, collard greens, home-made blankets and fancy work.

The big dinner, which is free to all, not only attracts a big crowd of buyers but it has put everybody in a generous mood. A dozen eggs brings 60 cents.

Pastor Powell's face beams. "We'll build a whole new church if this keeps us," he says. An average auction day brings in as much as $150 for the church.

Writer Views Hitler Talk As Step Toward Peace

Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

New York, April 28—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech in reply to President Roosevelt's appeal for a pledge of non-aggression can be taken on the face of it as a step in the direction of peace.

That is to say, it should lessen the European war-tension greatly. And it is legitimate to hope that peace negotiations may grow out of the present situation.

The nazi chieftain's answer was a mixture of rejection and acecptance of Mr. Roosevelt's plea. He chided the President and was caustically critical of American policies, past and president. He accused both the government and the press of this country of "war-mongering."

Still, the trend of his speech seemed to be towards opening the door to peace negotiations in some form, though he did declare:

"German representatives will never again enter a conference that for them is a tribunal. For who is there to be the judge there?"

In any event, many observers hold that, if the crisis now has turned towards peace, President Roosevelt's appeal has had its desired effect, whether Hitler chooses to call his reply a rejection or not.

The President's message obviously created a situation which has resulted in this vital show-down.

Specifically answering Mr. Roosevelt's non-aggression appeal, Herr Hitler declared himself willing to give other nations assurances of non-aggression on the condition of absolute reciprocity and provided the states in question desire it.

At another place the German leader declared:

"I wish to point out firstly, that I have not conducted any war; secondly that for years past I have expressed my abhorrence of war and, it is true, also my abhorrence of war mongers, and thirdly that I am not aware for what purpose I should wage a war at all."

Hitler expressed his extreme distrust of conferences. However, he indicated that the question of German expansion to give her breathing space, and the matter of return of her colonies, were among the things which would have to be determined.

In this connection he laid down the principle that "according to all common sense, logic, and the general principles of higher human justice, indeed according to the laws of a divine will, all peoples ought to have an equal share of the goods of this world."

Indirectly he charged that Germany had been robbed of her colonies. He appealed to President Roosevelt to redeem, as he put it, the promises of President Woodrow Wilson, saying:

"President Wilson solemnly pledged his word that German colonial claims like all others would secure just examination. Instead of this the German possessions were given to nations who have always had the largest colonial empires."

F. D. R. DENIES HE PROPOSED 'SEA' PARLEY

Hyde Park, N. Y., April 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt today declared as "not true" a New York Times story that he had proposed last year that Mussolini and Hitler meet him at sea to discuss their minimum terms for peace.

The President authorized the following statement:

"I have read the Krock story in the New York Times. It is not true, but otherwise it is interesting and well written."

The Times story, sent from Washington under the signature of Arthur Krock, declared the President's purpose in suggesting such an unprecedented conference was "to learn from the dictators at first hand their minimum terms for pledging lasting peace and, if he found these practical, to offer his services as intermediary."

A White House secretary said the President slept through the entire speech today by Chancellor Hitler.

Broadcasting officials said the reichstag address lasted two hours and 20 minutes, ending at 8:20 a. m. (E.S.T.). This was the exact minute the President was said, to have awakened. The secretary added the President would have no comment on the German leader's address.

He said the President, while waiting to receive the Norwegian Crown Prince Olaf and Crown Princess Martha, of Norway, would spend most of his time discussing with Franklin Walker, of New York, plans to turn over his Hyde Park home as an archives for his public and private papers after he leaves office.

"we want to change the eagle, symbol America has ever stood for, for the lowly oyster, symbol of security."

Following Doctor Hanson on the program was Dr. Charles M. A. Stine, of Wilmington, Delaware, vice-president and director of the E. I. duPont de Nemours company, and member of the board of trustees of Gettysburg College. Doctor Stine graduated from Gettysburg in 1901.

He traced the history of chemistry and medicine and told how chemistry has aided medicine in its fight against disease and infection.

Carl F. Chronister, chairman of the committee in charge of the meeting, was toastmaster. Other persons at the speakers table who made brief talks were: the Rev. Dr. S. Winfield Herman, the Rev. Dr. J. E. Rudisill, Paul H. Rhoads, president of the clubs, and Dr. J. B. McAlister.

Announcement was made that the club will hold a sub-freshmen smoker some time in the middle of next month.

STRUGGLE LOOMS OVER "POISON" LEGISLATION

Harrisburg, April 28 (AP)—Licensed pharmacists and unregulated retail storekeepers mustered two opposing groups today for a fight on legislation that would tighten restrictions on preparation and sale of possibly poisonous or harmful medical supplies.

The druggists' desire for more stringent regulation was intensified by disclosures in Philadelphia's insurance-murder plot, in which numerous victims were killed by easily-purchased poisons.

On the other side were retail storekeepers—notably proprietors of rural general stores—who feared restrictions on their sale of patent medicines, and medical supplies might create a monopoly for pharmacists.

PROPOSES ROAD AGENCY

Washington, April 28 (AP)—Chairman Cartwright (D.-Okla.) of the house roads committee proposed today creation of a new agency to begin a long-range national highway program, aimed at eventual construction of stream-lined transcontinental highways.

Cartwright said his plan grew out of a bureau of roads survey which President Roosevelt sent to congress Thursday. The President said the report emphasized the need of new highways "to meet the requirements of the national defense and the needs of a growing peacetime traffic of longer range."

JAMES APPROVES DUNLOP APPOINTMENT

EXTRA-INNING CONTESTS MARK MAJOR LEAGUES

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Before it is completed this major league baseball campaign may be remarkable for many things, but right now it is distinguished for the number and length of its extra-inning games.

In 11 days, during which many contests were rained out, there have been nine marathon matches. This is approximately double the number of extra-inning ventures over any similar period in recent years.

The list was padded Thursday by the 13-inning duel the Chicago White Sox claimed from the Detroit Tigers and the 11-inning thriller the St. Louis Cardinals took from Pittsburgh's hapless Pirates.

Hank Steinbacher, a pinch hitter, sent Mike Kreevich home in the 13th for a 2-1 White Sox victory.

Pittsburgh's seventh consecutive loss in the other extra-chapter story was a bitter dose because the Pirates led most of the way and seemed victory-bound when Gus Suhr hit a home run in the 11th. But Don Padgett singled in a tying run and the usually steady Pep Young fumbled a grounder which let Padgett also score and win 6-5 for the Cardinals.

The Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds were headed for a long bout until the Reds burst out with eight runs in their half of the eighth to win 11-3.

The Boston Bees and Philadelphia Phillies also decided their melee in the eighth as Al Simmons hit for the circuit and Boston's margin in a 5-4 triumph.

The Washington Senators had no trouble subduing the Philadelphia Athletics, 6-3, on the nine-hit knuckleball pitching of Dutch Leonard.

The St. Louis Browns eased past the Cleveland Indians, 4-2, with Johnny Marcum having a shutout until the ninth when Jeff Heath hit a home run with one on for the Tribe.

Bad weather in the east caused postponement of the games scheduled between New York and Brooklyn in the senior circuit and the Yankees and Boston in the American league.

YORK SPRINGS DROPS 2 TILTS

York Springs dropped baseball and softball games in Adams county scholastic league games played at York Springs Thursday afternoon as part of the "Campus Day" celebration.

Coach Jack Miller's New Oxford high nine swamped the York Springs aggregation 15-2.

Fairfield high won its sixth straight softball game by defeating the York Springs girls 21-13. By virtue of its victory Fairfield qualifies to meet the second-place team in a three-game series for the league title.

NOW HER MAID CAN SEE WHAT THE DUCHESS SEES

London (AP).—A move to "put the maid on an equality with the duchess in getting her entertainment" has been launched by Isidore Ostrer, chairman of the Gaumont-British Picture corporation which is installing television in 80 of its theatres.

"In the past the only people who could see such events as the Grand National were the fairly wealthy and those people who lived locally," said Ostrer. "Today every person in England and Scotland should be able to see that event for sixpence (12 cents), and see it better than the millionaire.

"The duchess can go to Ascot, but why should not the little maid be able to see just as much as her mistress, and at a very small cost?"

From 1929 to 1938 United States production of turkeys increased more than 56 per cent—from 17,000,000 birds to 26,000,000.

Adams County League Opens Saturday; Bonneauville Here

Large crowds are expected at the four games which will be staged Saturday afternoon to open the 1939 season of the Adams county baseball league. All games will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Manager John Ridinger's Gettysburg outfit will be host to Bonneauville on the high school field.

Other games listed for Saturday include Bendersville at Fairfield, Littlestown at Arendtsville, and Cashtown at Jackson Shoe.

From all indications the race will be a hot affair this season. Littlestown, last year's champion, has practically the same roster and will be the team to beat. Other teams have strengthened their lineups with new players and are still on the hunt for additional talent to bolster their squads.

Although the workouts by the squads were held up considerably during the last two weeks because inclement weather and teams got in good drills Monday and Tuesday during the warm spell and showed they will need little additional practice to reach mid-season form.

Johnny Slaybaugh has been nominated to hurl for the locals with Buck Stahle doing the catching. The probable lineup and batting order follows: Martin, 2b; Hankey, cf; B. Knox, lf; Johnson, 1b; Stahle, c; McSherry, 3b; Plantz, ss; Wright, rf, and Slaybaugh, p.

LOOKING AROUND

ALREADY 17 colleges and universities have entered teams in the twenty-seventh annual Middle Atlantic States Collegiate track and field championships which will be held at Rutgers university, New Brunswick, New Jersey, Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13. Last year the annual championships were held on the Gettysburg college field. The track on which the running events will be held is considered one of the finest in the country. It has a twelve-lane 220-yard straight-away and has eight lanes on the curves and backstretch. A specially designed field for the field events, shot put, discus and javelin is located back of the stadium. A feature of the two-day meet will be a boat race Saturday afternoon between the crews of Rutgers and Dartmouth. Teams entered in the meet include Alfred, Bucknell, Delaware, Dickinson, Drexel, Franklin and Marshall, Gettysburg, Haverford, Juniata, Lafayette, Lehigh, Muhlenberg, Rutgers, St. Joseph's, Swarthmore, Ursinus and Washington.

Charley Gelbert is making a big hit with Washington baseball fans due to his smooth fielding and heavy hitting. Gelbert, who took over the third base duties when Lewis became ill, is hitting .407 and leading the Senators. Incidentally, Charley may become $7,500 richer in the near future if an appeal he has made to Judge Kenesaw M. Landis is upheld by the baseball commissioner. He claims he should receive the money paid to Toledo by Washington when he was drifted inasmuch as he had an agreement with the American Association club that he would be allowed to sell himself at the close of the 1938 season.

Marsby Little, assistant county superintendent of schools, introduced the speaker and made a short address.

Brief remarks were made by W. Roy Starry, principal of the York Springs high school, and Elmer Slaybaugh, principal at Fairfield.

An Evening Thought

It requires a strong constitution to withstand repeated attacks of prosperity.—J. L. Basford.

Out of the Past

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times the files reveal.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Town Man Weds a County Girl.—The Old Jesuit Mission at Buchanan Valley was the scene on Tuesday morning of a quiet wedding when Miss Martha M. Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Whalen, was held at 7:30 o'clock.

The bridegroom is a member of the firm of Clapsaddle and Oyler, whose concrete plant is located on the Baltimore 'pike.

The bride and bridegroom were attended by a newly-married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Pius I. Smith, of New Oxford.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Oyler will make their home in an apartment at 131 East Middle street.

Pastor Flays Violators of the Eighteenth Amendment.—"If you do not obey the laws laid down by the constitution of the United States, including the eighteenth amendment, you are not good Odd Fellows and are traitors to your God, and no better than the man who would shoot at the Stars and Stripes."

In the manner the Rev. Harry Daniels flayed law violators in a sermon to members of the local lodge of Odd Fellows and the woman's auxiliary, the Rebekahs, at the Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday evening. The occasion marked the one hundred and fifth anniversary of the foundnng of Odd Fellowship in the United States.

TRIUMPH

With right good heart face every day
Of sunshine or of rain,
And let it bring you what it may
Of little loss or gain.
For triumph is no measured thing
Of profit, strength or size,
But something which may also spring
From being brave or wise.

There is a glory seldom told
Of strengthened inner pride
As one contrives his faith to hold
When he is sorely tried.
And there is triumph over pain
And loss and doubt and fear
Which stands to mark the spirit's gain,
Of which we seldom hear.

There's victory in keeping true
When playing false might win;
Though fame and riches men pursue
Success lies first within.
And who would measure triumph well
Must run the day's full length,
Able to be at night to tell
The spirits gain in strength.

He had been arrested Wednesday evening on the Biglerville-Arendtsville highway and held here until the hearing.

From the standpoint of eugenics and biology, brother and sister bear a closer relationship to one another than to either of the parents. The parent and child have one-half common blood, while brother and sister have all common blood.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

MAN'S SENSIBLE PLACES

I SHALL never hunt for the perfect human being — for I know that he does not exist. I do know, however, that there are human beings, beyond all calculation, who are imbued with more good points than bad. I have always, and shall always, find my friends among them.

It's the sensible places in a man's make-up that attract and which compel us to tie to him. We like to have people ignore our own bad traits, so therefore, to be fair, we ought to ignore the bad traits of those with whom we come in contact.

If people started immediately to hunt for the good points — the sensible points — that are a part of every human being, there would be more genuine friends in the world. Each of us could, thereby, add to our number of friends. It is an indictment of ourselves when we fail to discover the sensible places in a person whom we have just met. The bad points will show up soon enough — as our own will — but this fact should not cloud away our first and basic discoveries.

There is the best of the human race — somewhere — in every human being. It is a compliment to our intelligence when we discover that best. We can win friends easily enough without flattering them. That for which we all crave in appreciation and understanding. The rest can be ignored.

We are all of a mould. If we fit accurately only at certain points, that is quite enough. It is sufficient that we have an honest point of contact. To think from the same plane, or to enjoy the same perspective, is satisfaction enough. Our eyes all focus differently — yet at an objective quite the same. None of us see the same glow of color in the rose, or at Sunset — yet we are both enraptured by the phenomenon.

We smell the fragrant flower without noticing the withered leaf below it! We are all defective in some way or other, but we don't want people to comment upon it or to call our attention to the fact. We want our good points — our sensible places — known. And so does everyone! To see these qualities in others is to live the magnanimous life.

The Rev. Lester M. Utz was confined to his home several days this week because of illness with the grippe.

Word was received on Thursday by Miss Edna Albert, York Springs R. D., that L. C. Walkinshaw, attorney of Greensburg, died on April 7 from a cerebral hemorrhage. It will be recalled that Attorney Walkinshaw was in charge of the Waltemyer-Ralston family reunion which was held last summer on the Peters property located along the York Springs-Goodyear road. Attorney Walkinshaw with his wife, son and daughter were house guests at the home of Mrs. Mary Spangler, York Springs, over the week-end of the reunion.

The deceased was a historian of note on the history of Pennsylvania and just before his death completed the manuscript for a book entitled "Annals of Southwestern Pennsylvania."

Among the mysterious secrets of nature is the effect of war on the masculine birth rate. During, and after a war, countries which have lost a large number of men almost invariably show an appreciable increase in male births.

Would any good farmer reap only part of a crop?

To make the best possible use of our days and our weeks and our years — to garner the most out of existence — that is everyone's aim.

Some cultivate fields that yield dollars. Money is their idea of a good crop — plenty of money. Others sow seeds hoping to reap fame. They gloat over barns filled with self-importance. Then, among the tillers of life's soil a large proportion there are who toil indifferently, deriving satisfaction from heaping platters of self-indulgence — temporary pleasures.

In all of these groups are those who fail to take full advantage of their possibilities. The soil of life is rich in the element that produces the most satisfying crop of all. If you sow no seeds of piety, you can grow no food for the soul, and a poorly nourished soul makes perfect happiness an impossibility. Without religion life can't be complete. Eliminate God and away go all chance of serenity — all things that are sound and worthwhile — all hope of an afterlife existence.

Cultivate religion — reap all of your crop — get everything that's coming to you — don't miss the best things in life —

TWO CHURCHMEN VISION UNION OF PROTESTANTS

Kansas City, April 28 (AP)—Two outstanding church leaders today hailed the Methodist uniting conference here as possibly opening the way for unification of all Protestants.

Dr. George Arthur Buttrick, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and Dr. Umphrey Lee, president of Southern Methodist university, expressed their views before 5,000 persons at a public worship service of the conference Thursday night.

"It is not my job to make the world Presbyterian or yours to make it Methodist," said Doctor Buttrick, pastor of Madison Avenue Presterian church in New York.

"Our united job under God is to make the world Christian. x x x

"The disunity of protestantism seems daily to become more grievous. Why should any of us deny outselves the Episcopal book of prayer so full of star fire, or the searchings of a Quaker silence, of the free worship of the presbyterians?

"A minister is expected to preach about 100 sermons a year. That equals about six books a year. You wouldn't expect that of an author. It's my conviction that no minister can preach two authentic sermons a day. Besides, he must be an administrator and a financier. The good Lord doesn't make men after that fashion. It does seem to me that the future of the protestant church is bound up with larger units and a specialized and multiple ministry."

"It is to be hoped that a united Methodism may be a challenge to American christendom," Doctor Lee told the congregation.

"It may be that even the regional organization of the Methodist church will point the way for the preservation of real diversity in a vital unity."

The first step toward actual physical union of the Methodists was taken Thursday night when the Methodist Protestant branch elected two bishops—the first this group has had in 111 years.

They are Dr. James H. Straughn, Baltimore, and Dr. John Calvin Broomfield, Fairmont, West Virginia.

Flashes of Life

By The Associated Press

Morganton, N. C.—Two little girls, picking wild flowers, peeked into a gloomy culvert and started away in fright. They told Policeman Roy Morrison they saw a "spooky-looking thing." Morrison investigated and found the "spirits" to be two pillow cases—enclosing 13 pints and 20 half-pints of liquor.

FAMILY STUFF

Louisville, Ky.—Lee Curry, Sr., life-long democrat, was slated to be named secretary of the city and county democratic committee. Then someone discovered Mrs. Curry was a registered republican. Now Curry may not get the job.

LITTLE HELPER

Augusta, Kas.—That new electric fence Ote Robinson hoped would keep his stock at home will be completed later. Robinson, not mechanically inclined, followed instructions to the letter up to page four. Then he was called away. When he returned he found a calf had chewed up the rules.

FLIGHTY STUDENTS

Albuquerque, N. M.—You might have expected the result from the mass aviation flight school here in which all high school students are given rides in a new sleek airliner. Teachers reported an astounding drop in the number of classroom "cuts."

LIFE BEGINS ~~AT~~ 70

Omaha, Neb.—Charles A. Butterfield's wife, Gertrude, complained in a petition for divorce that he was old fashioned because he wanted to stay home nights instead of going to bridge and pinochle parties. They were married three years ago. Butterfield is 82; his wife 70.

One of the most important Japanese holidays is March 21, officially the first day of spring.

Chapter 47

Near A Solution

AROUND supper time Asey returned to the Leach house, not remembering until he reached the front door Sara's warning that Bertha was to have the week-end off.

But Bertha herself called to him from the upstairs window as he returned to his car.

"Asey; Asey Mayo! If you want supper, come 'round to the kitchen door!"

Asey grinned, and returned.

"There's plenty to eat," Bertha said, "if you don't mind cold things—look at my cups! Three!" she pointed proudly to the silver cups on the kitchen table. "And fifty dollars, cash money! I give it to my mother, the money. She was so happy she cried. Oh, I was hopin'—But I thought Mrs. Brinley would get it. She always does! An' I know it was you that did it!"

"I was one," Asey reminded her, "of four women an' four men."

He didn't feel it was necessary to add that he had maneuvered things so that he made his decisions first and that the others had used the same blank afterwards, or that he had commented rather outspokenly on his ability as a Cape Codder to know good jelly when he saw it in front of his eyes. At least five of the judges had been returned settlers, and they were very anxious to prove themselves good Cape Codders.

"You fixed it, somehow," Bertha said. "And I want you to have the jelly. I told mother, and she said you should, have it—"

"I can't," Asey said. "Why, you ought to put that on the mantelpiece an' show it to all your beaus."

"No," Bertha said obstinately, "I want you to have it. Say, did they do anything to the jelly, like cookin' it? This looks dif'rent from when I took it up."

"Not while I was there, an' not that jar," Asey said. "Look I can't take—"

"You will. You'll have it for supper, right now," Bertha said, "with cold roast beef. There." She removed the paraffin, and turned the jelly out into a dish. "It certainly looks different," she said. "They must have done something to it after they got through the judging."

"It's a crime to open that, Bertha," Asey said, "but I want you to know I appreciate it."

While he waited for her to cut his beef, he spread some of the jelly on a piece of bread.

"How is it?" Bertha asked. "How—what's—what's the matter?"

Asey, with his hand to his mouth, rushed from the room.

Bertha's eyes filled with tears, and then she grabbed a teaspoon and tasted the jelly. She was rushing from the kitchen as Asey returned.

"Well," Asey said when she came back, "well? I mean, I'm awful sorry to act like that, but seein' as how you done the same—"

"Asey Mayo!" Bertha said, "Asey, that's not my jelly! I never made anything like that awful burned smelly stuff! Why, I should think someone swept out a coal bin and boiled the sweepings with burned sugar! I didn't think, this afternoon, that it was mine. It looked dif'rent. But the number was right on it, and it was my number, and it was the same jar, and all—Asey, how do you suppose—how did it happen?"

Different Glass

"I don't know."

"But you tasted it—didn't the judges taste it?"

Asey nodded. "You c'ntestants put in two jars, an' they had the same numbers. An' the judges used one to taste from, an' then stuck the duplicate under the light an' stared at it, an' peered around. Bertha, this ain't the same jelly of yours we tasted this afternoon! Now, that's curious. Flip it back into the par an' let me stare at it again."

He held it up to the light. "No it's not. Bertha, let me see that paraffin. Huh. Now, get me one of your glasses of beach-plumb from the preserve closet."

"Same jars," Bertha said.

"Nope. This here's a bluer glass."

"They all came from the same set of jars!"

"Paraffin's dif'rent," Asey said. "Not as white. Bertha, let me think."

"Well," Bertha said after fifteen minutes, "where'd that awful stuff come from?"

"I think I know," Asey said slowly. "I think I know where it come from. I can't be sure. I looked at so many jars of jelly yesterday. Bertha, gimme this—"

"That stuff? I should say not! It goes right out to the garbage hole!"

"Nope," Asey said. "Bertha, I want you to do somethin' for me. I'm goin' to take this awful tastin' stuff, an' you're not goin' to tell a soul I got it. Take the labels an' put 'em on another jar. Whatever you do, don't you tell a soul!"

"You—you kind of scare me," Bertha said. "Why—what're you so solemn about? What's the good of that nasty stuff?"

"You know what's been goin' on, don't you? About Mary Randall an' Eloise?"

Bertha nodded. "Aunt Sara told us, but we haven't told. What's that got to do with it?"

"I figured one thing," Asey said, "I figured another, an' now, with luck, this nasty stuff's goin' to solve 'em before I go to bed tonight!"

Hamilton stood just inside the Town Hall ball room and hummed under his breath the tune that Upjohn's Merrymakers were swinging to the skies.

He had hoped to attend the final grand ball in an entirely unofficial ~~capacity, but he had reckoned~~ without Asey Mayo.

He finally located Kay Thayer, dancing with Zeb. He winked at her and jerked his head toward the corridor, and then leaned back against the wall as though his only problem in life was to prop up the rafters.

The girl got it. Asey said she would. At the end of the dance Kay wandered over to him.

"Hi, trooper," she looked at the interested watchers and satisfied their curiosity. "Found my brief case yet?"

"Yes, ma'am," Hamilton said. "Will you come look at it?"

He led her out the back way. "Look," he said, "here's a note from Asey. Read it, and then take this to Zeb Chase. I'll wait for you here. Go grab a coat."

'It's Insane'

Zeb watched Kay's departure with increasing irritation. But Asey's note, in his pocket had been firm and definite. When Asey wanted him, Asey would tell him, and in the interval he was to mind his own business.

"Has Asey really got anything?" Kay demanded as Hamilton turned the car toward the Leaches' house.

"I wouldn't say this to everyone," he told her, "but the guy's losing his grip. He lands up at the hollow this afternoon late with a jar of beachplum jelly—"

"With a what?"

"You heard. And with that, he goes into action. And when Asey—"

"Goes into action," Kay said feelingly, "he goes into action. I know. I had some brief experience with it last night. What have you—what's he been doing?"

Hamilton smiled. "Go change your clothes. I'll tell you later."

The darkness and quiet of the old house made Kay glad that the trooper was within call. She changed in a hurry and rushed back to the car.

"Tell me more!"

"Oh, we busted into Brinleys'—darn dog, it bit Lane. He's mad as hops. We been here twice. Asey, he's burglarized the town offices, with all that gang of you below. He—"

"But there were new locks on the offices, he told me so. After Prettyman got in. And say, what become of Tertius?"

"Oh, he's okay. Asey phoned him tonight. I don't know why. No, locks don't bother Asey. He went to sea with a burglar mate once, and he learned all the tricks. And the fellow he had with him helped—"

"What fellow?"

Hamilton shrugged. "Asey brought him from Boston—"

"From Boston?"

"Yeah. He's been there today, didn't you know? I don't know the man and nobody told me who he is. While Asey was doing that, we combed around the hollow—oh, I almost forgot. We held up your photographer and we kidnapped General Philbrick."

"Buck—what for? And the General—" Kay shook her head. "Hamilton, this is pure Munchausening."

"No sir," Hamilton protested. "The General didn't mind coming. He seemed to like it. Lane and I did the hold-up. We stole his rain coat and his pictures of the exhibition—"

"I know it's a lie," Kay said. "Buck only has negatives, not pictures—"

"Pictures," Hamilton said firmly. "Local man developed 'em. For the winners. Pictures taken yesterday. Lane and I put on long coats and tied handkerchiefs around our faces, and held him up in his car, just outside where he rooms. We tied him up. Little later we came along as police and undid him and gave him everything back. Asey'd already found out what he wanted. He was waiting in the bushes. Anyway, Buck thinks we're swell. But what Asey wanted a lot of pictures of jelly and strong beans for, nobody knows—"

"Jelly!" Kay said. "It's insane—hurry up. I can't stand this suspense!"

Continued tomorrow.

HOLLYWOOD

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—Jimmy's got IT.

And I mean the kind of IT that Hollywood talks about, likes, and needs.

James Roosevelt's first official duty—as a vice-president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc.—was to hold a press conference.

The setting of this little drama was the boss's white-paneled, buff-draperied inner sanctum. For the occasion the "star," a lank lad of 31 with a very familiar smile and comparatively little light brown hair left, was neatly, ungaudily attired in a business suit of purplish tinge, with a dark blue-and-white tie, black shoes. The "supporting cast" of one—the dapper Mr. Goldwyn—was neatly, more gaudily apparent in a small-checked sports suit, with black-and-white shoes. The supporting cast also beamed.

Even if you didn't know that the President's eldest son was a Washington veteran of such affairs, his demeanor would have informed you. After handshakes all around, he moved up front, sat sidewise on Mr. Goldwyn's glass-topped desk, and grinned, too, and said, "Gentlemen, here is your victim."

The questions started and Jimmy demonstrated as neat a capacity for answering—or parrying—as Hollywood has seen in years. The first thrust was on his salary. Was it, or wasn't it, as high as $50,000 a year, as reported?

Under that figure, said Jimmy, and then—"and not enough to interest Alva Johnston, either," he added, which brought laughter. (Mr. Johnston, you remember, made Jimmy angry with a piece called "Jimmy's Got It"—and he didn't mean IT).

And from then on, it was developed that Jimmy expected to spend the first two months in Mr. Goldwyn's New York office, learning the industry's fundamentals; and he couldn't compare this job with his latest—as secretary to his father—because this one had a future and the other was at best "only temporary."

Jimmy is the first Washington celebrity to join the movies since Will Hays left the postmaster-general's office to become the industry's "czar."

What's behind it? Well, Mr. Goldwyn (who incidentally is our most celebrity-conscious producer) said when he met Jimmy it was "love at first sight." He said he felt the industry needed young men like Jimmy, and he expected great things of him. He said he had a five-year contract with Jimmy (but he didn't answer the small voice that said "With options?")

And aside from that, aside from the younger Roosevelt's past successes in business, there's the logical conjecture that right now the movie industry can use a little old-family-and-Harvard tradition as an antidote for the comic-strip version of movie executives with which the public is familiar.

The movie industry wants dignity. Mr. Goldwyn, in particular, admires dignity. In adding James Roosevelt to the roster of movie executives, Hollywood takes on a large order of prestige—along with a sizeable amount of personal charm that can make friends for Hollywood—and for Goldwyn.

SAYS ASSEMBLY MAY ADJOURN IN TWO WEEKS

Harrisburg, April 28 (AP)—The legislature will go on a five-day work-week Monday night with key men standing by their predictions that final adjournment in two weeks is possible.

"I've never departed from my prediction the legislature would be through by May 12," said Speaker Ellwood Turner.

Rep. Robert E. Woodside, Jr., republican floor leader, said the house would "be through with its work and have every important piece of legislation in the senate by May 10."

Another two days, theoretically, would permit the senate to complete action on bills coming from the house, turn over completed legislation to Governor James for his signature, and go home.

Turner has called a republican caucus before the legislature starts back to work Monday night, to go over matters still pending before the house. Topping the list are appropriations, relief, liquor, coal, and workmen's compensation.

The status of bills on these subjects:

1—APPROPRIATIONS—The first batch of bills to finance governmental operations during the next two years emerged from a house committee Thursday. Woodside said the rest would be ready Monday night, and could be put through house and senate within the week.

2—RELIEF—The controversial Van Allsburg bill to take 5,000 departmental workers from under civil service, and give county boards more authority, was held over for action Monday night.

3—A series of measures to split up liquor licensing among regional and county boards, increase license fees and tighten restrictions on night clubs and taverns, among other things, was shunted back to committee. Turner explained democrats wanted to talk over some contemplated amendments, and that Chairman Walter Harrison Hitchler of the liquor control board had some ideas in mind, before the bills come up for a vote.

4—COAL—Two programs to aid the anthracite industry, one by a special all-republican group, and the other by operators themselves, are held in committee. The committee had a public hearing at Pittsburgh today to gather suggestions for helping the bituminous industry, particularly regarding transportation charges.

5—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—Five bills to revise the compensation and occupational disease acts were approved by the republican leadership. Administration spokesmen in the legislature declared some laws must be enacted because of holes left in present statutes as a result of courts' invalidation of numerous sections.

After the flowers are gathered in the spring, he plants corn and beans, reaping another rich harvest from the same land.

SWEET YOUNG BASQUE FROCK

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9060

Girls, join the style brigade and wear a basque frock! You'll fall head over heels in love with pattern 9060, the newest and prettiest of them all, for it's a design exactly right for this world's fairest spring and summer. Fashion is sentimental about lace . . . so trim the becoming scalloped neckline, short sleeves and flaring hem with this soft edging. Study the other details of this very new Marian Martin triumph (quickly made with the aid of its sew chart). Gathers are placed under a bodice-front panel to give pliant lines above the pointed waist. And shirring — run up swiftly with a flying needle — curves the sleeve edges in such a flattering way!

Pattern 9060 may be ordered only in misses' sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 39 inch fabric and 5⅝ yards lace.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

It's brand new and it's yours to order . . . Marian Martin's Summer 1939 Pattern book! See your fashion-future in clothes you'll love to make. Vacation, town and travel fashions! Charm for day and evening . . . basque and petticoat frocks, shirtwaisters, "heat-wave" sportswear, June wedding and party gowns! Also patterns suggesting what cottons to pick and what's new in assembled outfits! Smartest kiddie, young girl, miss and matron styles are included. Send today! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together twenty-five cents.

Send your order to The Gettysburg Times, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

CAROLINE TULIP GROWER SELLS TO HOLLANDERS

Terra Ceia, N. C. (AP).—Ruddy-faced Hendrick van Dorp came over from Holland 15 years ago to plant vegetables but remained to find his fortune in tulips.

Fellow countrymen told him the beautiful flowers of their native land would not grow in such foreign soil, black and fertile though it was. He took issue with them and to prove his point he is now one of the largest tulip producers in America, shipping each spring 125,000 dozen flowers and nearly 1,000,000 bulbs.

He has shipped some of his fine bulbs even to Holland, long famous for its tulip culture.

SPECIAL SUNDAY DINNER

FOUR YEARS TO $1000

If someone were to tell you that four miles outside of town there was $1,000 waiting for you—you would go after it, without even waiting to put on your coat.

Do you realize that $1,000 IS waiting for you—not four miles away, but a short four years away? Simply by depositing $4.81 a week for this length of time, you would have $1,000.48 in the bank, not counting interest.

How many times have you said, "I could 'go places' if I just had a thousand dollars." Well, there it is — only four years away. Are you willing to go after it?
